

Local Senior Living Communities Earn EPA Certification for Superior Efficiency

BRENTWOOD, Tenn., Dec. 21, 2016 – Twenty-one Brookdale communities have earned the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s (EPA’s) ENERGY STAR certification, which signifies that the buildings perform in the top 25 percent of similar facilities nationwide for energy efficiency and meets strict energy efficiency performance levels set by the EPA.

“I’m very proud our Brookdale communities for earning the EPA’s ENERGY STAR certification,” said Marla Thalheimer, director of Sustainability at Brookdale Senior Living. “This achievement demonstrates the commitment we’ve made to sustainability and our ability to provide a healthful and environmentally sound home for our residents.”

To earn the ENERGY STAR certification, buildings must use an average of 35 percent less energy than typical buildings and also release 35 percent less carbon dioxide into the atmosphere.

Brookdale communities that received the ENERGY STAR certification include:

Arizona
